CALVIVA HEALTH

CalViva Health Enhances City Center With Green Space Investment

CalViva Health is proud to support the Fresno Mission's City Center and Family Center by investing in a new soccer field. The field complements the 73-room housing facility designed to serve families in crisis. While the Family Center provides essential shelter and resources, CalViva Health's investment in green space ensures families have a place for physical activity, recreation and community connection.

At CalViva Health, we recognize that health extends beyond medical care—safe spaces for exercise and play contribute to overall well-being. This new soccer field at the City Center will provide children and families a place to stay active, relieve stress, and engage with their community. By supporting initiatives like this, CalViva Health reaffirms its commitment to fostering healthier, more vibrant communities across Fresno.

ACCESS

Pregnant Central Valley Medi-Cal Members to Get Greater Quality of Care with TMAH Model Initiative

The California Department of Health Care Services (DHCS) has been chosen by the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) to apply its Transforming Maternal Health \(TMAH\) Model. TMAH is a 10-year Medicaid and Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) delivery and payment model.

On February 3, Ramiro Zúñiga, MD, MBA, FGAAP (vice president, medical director at Health Net) joined in the DHCS launch of the Birthing Care Pathway and TMAH.

TMAH will target areas with the greatest need for intervention and resources. It's designed to improve maternal health outcomes, and to reduce health care costs. The model offers a whole-person approach to:

- Pregnancy
- Childbirth
- Postpartum care

California is one of 15 states chosen to take part in the TMAH Model.

The TMAH Model will reimburse providers based on patient health outcomes and quality of care, rather than the volume of services provided. Its focus is to:

- Improve maternal outcomes
- Reduce costs
- Enhance quality of care

By targeting these areas for Medi-Cal members, the TMAH Model aims to:

- Reduce low-risk Cesareans
- Lower severe maternal morbidity
- Increase access to maternal providers such as:
 - Midwives
 - Doulas
 - Birth centers

This project is designed to help improve the state's maternal care system, most notably for pregnant Medi-Cal members and their infants. This group usually falls victim to disparities in maternal health care access and outcomes. DHCS will implement the TMAH Model in five Central Valley counties:

- Fresno
- Kern
- Kings
- Madera
- Tulare

DHCS has also produced fact sheets that highlight improved access to care:

- Doctors, Midwives and Doulas: Finding the Right Care Team for Your Pregnancy

At-Risk Californians Can Seek Housing Through Nonprofit Rental Deposits

CalAIM, or California Advancing and Innovating Medi-Cal, is part of a nationwide, multi-year plan to transform the Medicaid program in the United States (called Medi-Cal in California) that oversees health services for the nation's:

- Poor
- Elderly
- Disabled citizens

"As part of this new approach, Medi-Cal managed care plans can provide Enhanced Care Management to ensure beneficiaries have the means to follow their doctor's orders. And [they have] Community Supports Services (launched in 2022) helping members find and sustain affordable housing," said Tessa Outhyse, a spokesperson for the California Department of Health Care Services.

In Sacramento County, health insurers have given thousands of dollars to help Medi-Cal members with the highest needs achieve and maintain housing stability. Insurers include:

- Health Net
- Kaiser Permanente
- Molina Healthcare of California
- Anthem Blue Cross

Health Net gifted $12,000 to help the United Way begin to cover housing deposits. This was done because it can take a while for nonprofits to get reimbursed by the plans.

Studies have shown that social factors play a greater role in a person's health than their genes or access to health care services. For this reason, many homeless California residents live in settings that worsen their medical conditions.

Health Net's Senior Director for Systems of Care Nancy Kalev described housing as the most important social determinant of health. "It can account for up to 80% of a person's health outcomes," she said.

Nancy went on to say, "Housing interventions can result in both improved health outcomes and decreased health care costs. So addressing the housing needs of our members aligns with Health Net's mission to transform the health of the communities we serve, one person at a time."

California Health Plan Leaders Unite to Launch Value-Based Payment Model

On January 30, 2025, Health Net and two other health plans announced a shared value-based payment model for Commercial PPO products.

Led by the California Quality Collaborative (CQC) and the Integrated Healthcare Association (IHA), the new payment model will:

- Span 11 primary care practices statewide
- Represent 112 care sites
- Cover a total patient population of about 17,000

The demonstration project will:

- Address differences in primary care payment
- Promote health equity
- Improve population health in California

"Participating in this project is crucial for us as a health plan because it aligns with our commitment to promoting health care excellence in California," said Health Net Vice President & Medical Director for Commercial Dr. Todd May. "By co-investing in a unified value-based payment model, and providing technical assistance for practice transformation, we are better supporting primary care practices in ways that can improve patient outcomes. And high functioning primary care is the foundation of a high-quality and cost-effective health care system."

Through the demonstration project, participating health plans will offer a common value-based payment model. The model is designed to invest more revenue into the practices and reward improvement and strong performance on the Advanced Primary Care Measure Set.

CQC is providing comprehensive technical assistance to help participating practices:

- Implement the new payment model
- Integrate behavioral and physical health services
- Improve care coordination
- Achieve better patient outcomes

Cozeva® will serve as the common reporting platform for the project. Practices will be able to view patient data across plans for insights on how to close care gaps, officials said.
